STADIUM, Chicago, July 16.—Straining under the merciless pressure of a third terms drive, the 1,094 delegates to the Democratic national convention re-convened today to perfect their organization while their cohorts wrangled in downtown hotels over the only questions left to them—the writing of a platform and selection of a vice-presidential candidate.

Actually the convention, as it began its third session at noon today, was only marking time until the big moment arrives Thursday when it is scheduled to get the complete and final answer on just how they are to go about the business of revolutionizing American tradition by nominating Franklin Delano Roosevelt for a third term in the White House.

Little To Stir Interest
With two listless sessions already written into the record, there was nothing in the cards in this, the third, calculated to stir delegates to a frenzy. In fact, a good portion of the delegates did not even bother to put in an appearance, so routine was the business which had been cut out for them. Likewise, the galleries were distinguished by great open spaces where a squatter could have easily set up house-keeping without being discovered.

The immediate business at hand

PA NEW OBSERVES

In one of the local stores Pa New sighted a radio attached to a bicycle.

While most of the wheat in Lawrence County looks ripe enough to be harvested, very little has as yet been cut. Wheat harvest is late this year.

Frank Penwell, of the Hillsville-Edenburg road, brought in to "The News" a dark brown egg, laid by a New Hampshire red hen. The egg is on display in the lobby of The News.

Coming into New Castle along the New Wilmington road early on a recent morning, Pa New was startled to see two horns protruding from the weeds along the edge of the road. Getting closer, he saw "Bossy" blissfully chewing her cud, unaware of her danger as she lay so close to the road.

Adding to the danger of driving, Pa New saw a truck load of hay going through the city recently, the cab almost completely covered. The hay hung down over the windshield, covering it almost entirely. In case of emergency, the driver would not have been able to see.

Britain Will Reject Any Ultimatum From Rome And Berlin Axis

LONDON, July 16.—Any "surrender or be destroyed" ultimatum which the Rome-Berlin Axis might deliver to Britain prior to launching a "blitzkrieg" against the British Isles is foredoomed to immediate rejection, authoritative London quarters declared today.

High Italian sources, predicting the beginning of a total war against England within a few days, had hinted that before such a "blitzkrieg" is launched a Nazi-Fascist ultimatum would be handed Britain.

Will Fight To End

Such a proposal would meet immediate rejection, and Britain will fight to the bitter end, it was stated today.

The British public has been warned not to be led into any false sense of security by the present lull, nor by the Nazi propaganda that Chancellor Hitler has no intention of attacking England.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 16.—Amid the traditional din and confusion of political conventions the Democratic convention got under way Monday afternoon, and again following tradition, the galleries were half empty. With thousands of folks in Chicago yelling for tickets, about 8,000 ticket holders stayed away.

The opening session of a political convention is what a golf player would call a practice stroke. Genial Jim Farley, national chairman, banged the gavel at 12:05, the band played, the organ added a sonorous accompaniment, the invocation was delivered and Mayor Edward J. Kelley of Chicago welcomed the delegates.

Out on the floor and in the galleries the crowd milled around and the buzz of conversation drowned

Lewis Is Silent On His Return From Convention

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 16.—John L. Lewis, head of the C.I.O., refused comment today on his sudden return to Washington from the Democratic national convention at Chicago.

Lewis, reached at his office, was told that his return was causing wide speculation in political circles. "No comment," was his reply.

Sources close to the C.I.O. leader claimed, however, that there was nothing unusual about Lewis' departure from Chicago. They declared that he originally had planned to remain in Chicago for only two days for conferences with other C.I.O. officials on platform recommendations to be made to the Democratic convention. With the conferences completed, he returned on schedule, these sources declared.

C.I.O. officials denied that there were any political differences between Lewis and other C.I.O. leaders who remained at Chicago.

Machinery In Trade School Is Operating

Start Training Of About 60 Men To Aid In National Defense Program

TWENTY AT WORK DURING MORNING

Trade School Machinery In Good Shape For Carrying On New Program

Machinery silent for years hummed again this afternoon at the New Castle Trade School, Luton street, as the New Castle school system, co-operating with the National Defense Council in Washington, launched an intensive course to train local men—idle men—to man the machines of industry for national defense.

The quiet about the shop building, adjoining Ben Franklin high school, was broken as Earle M. Cass, new director of vocational education for the schools here, put 20 men to work studying the intricate machine operations.

Expect To Train 60
The 20 will get instruction for eight hours a day until they master their machines—and Wednesday night two night shifts go on, and from then on 60 will be getting instruction over the 24-hour period.

Cass emphasizes that the training falls under the classification of national defense.

"Uncle Sam you can readily understand, is going to have an abundance of trained men ready to matter what the future brings," he said. The training not only started here but in many other towns and cities throughout Pennsylvania. The local course, under the immediate direction of the schools' vocational training chief, functions with the knowledge and authority of Harrisburg and Washington "national defense leaders."

In four days—from last Friday until early this morning—the duty

SHANGHAI, July 16.—Japanese warships and airplanes today began operations in the Hangchow Bay area to close the last Chinese ports through which war supplies have been reaching Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, as the offices of an American-owned newspaper in Shanghai became the target of a bomb.

The bomb was hurled at the offices and plant of the newspaper Shun Pao, presumably by gangsters inspired by the puppet government of Wang Ching Wei at Nanking. Several Chinese were injured.

Attack In Shanghai
Simultaneously, Shanghai underwent its first attack in more than two years early today as Chinese guerrillas launched an assault on the city from the south Nantao region. During a heavy fog, the guerrillas attacked at about 4 a. m., waking residents of the French concession with the sound of machine gun and rifle fire.

Bombing of the Shun Pao was the second within three months against an American newspaper. The Shanghai Evening Post was bombed last April 26.

The Shun Pao is China's largest independent daily paper. N. P. Allman, of Gladeville, Va., and Washington, D. C., noted expert on international law, has been head of the newspaper for the past two years. Also, he holds the largest vote in the Shanghai municipal council which governs the affairs of the international settlement.

Allman was one of six Americans ordered out of China yesterday by the Wang government.

"During repeated air attacks yesterday on British shipping in the Channel, we sank three merchantmen totalling 11,000 tons, and damaged five additional vessels.

"In the course of yesterday's operations the air force attacked British airports at Pembroke, St. Atham (Wales), Plymouth and Bicester; docks and piers at Cardiff and Brighton; and an aircraft factory at Yeovil, causing numerous fires and explosions.

The Royal Air Force again bombed western Germany last night without causing any damage."

PORTAGE, Pa., July 16.

—Less than 24 hours after a gas explosion shook the subterranean depths of the Son man shaft of the Koppers Coal Company, the bodies of 63 miners were removed today by rescue squads. The last two bodies were recovered about 10 o'clock this morning.

The loss of life was the greatest in Pennsylvania's soft coal district since May, 1928 when 194 men were killed at Mather.

Crowds of silent wives, sons, daughters and relatives watched as the shrouded bodies were removed shortly after dawn from the blast-shattered mine.

Twenty-One Escape

Although company officials had previously held to their figure of 71 persons in the mine at the time of the explosion, the knowledge that 63 were dead and 21 had miraculously escaped boosted the figure to 84.

James Erskine, a Koppers' official, said he believed all the dead were now located.

Until early this morning, hundreds of silent spectators stood about on the hillside overlooking the entrance to the old mineshaft.

Attempts were made to identify the dead as soon as they were brought above surface, but in some trade school machine shop was readied by school district workers for the opening today.

"We weren't expecting to start work until fall," the training chief explained. "Instead, we're starting now, thanks to the school men who made that possible."

The 60 men chosen for the first instruction, he said, were selected carefully from more than 300 who wanted to get it.

And as the machines pounded inside at the trade school, groups of other men desiring the training inquired about the course outside.

Cass could only explain to them that a man, to be eligible for selection, must register at the state employment office in Citizens Bank building and then await a call from that office. Employment Office Manager Joseph R. Hensley and his staff draw names from the office files and sent eligibles to Cass.

"We can't take on anybody any other way," Cass stressed. "That approach to the course is in the law."

Supporting the training here is a newly-named "industrial advisory committee" composed of prominent businessmen and industrialists and headed by City Controller Sidney L. Lockley. It was formed at a conference last Friday evening, when Cass was introduced to industrialists of the district for the first time.

School Training To Start
Cass said the regular school term vocational training—"day school" he calls it—will commence on schedule in September and that the national defense group will continue its training at night.

He said the training will go ahead until word comes to halt it. But until then there won't be any let-up. The shop will turn out as many men as possible and, through the employment office, place them in jobs created by the national defense emergency.

Stepping Up Production
All over the nation plants are stepping-up production and the resulting demand for workers, Cass believes, will call back men up to 50 years of age if they're physically able.

Two types of workers are being called for the course—those already working in plants who need additional machine instruction and those patriotic men now idle who want "to do their bit" somewhere in industry.

A man completing the course receives a sealed certificate from the vocational training head which will help him find a job far more easily than before.

These men will learn to operate engine lathes, milling machines, shapers, planers, grinders, heat treating furnaces and drill presses, and they'll do bench work, too.

The fault is not in our social gains but in the fact that we have "solved" our problems only by borrowing money.

BRITAIN WILL REJECT ANY ULTIMATUM FROM ROME AND BERLIN AXIS

vinced Hitler merely is holding back while reorganization of his forces is being completed. As soon as this task is finished, they believe his attack upon Britain will come.

Vast preparations for the assault upon the British Isles are known to exist in German-occupied territory across the English Channel and the North Sea, and repeated Royal Air Force attacks are being made on the basis of the most exact evidence to this effect.

Nazi Radio Silent

R. A. F. attacks of this nature were believed to have taken place before dawn today on a tremendous scale, as indicated by the silence of a dozen or more Nazi-controlled radio stations for long periods today and last night.

The air ministry said "it can be assumed that the silence of the German radios may be attributed to Royal Air Force activity," but would reveal no details until later today when the regular communiqué has been compiled reporting activity of the air force during last night and the early hours of this morning.

Silence of the German stations first was noted by the British broadcasting company late last night, and it was announced that some of the stations had not yet returned to broadcasting as late as daybreak today.

The BBC revealed: "No fewer than twelve German-controlled stations closed down, ranging from the Dutch and Belgian stations in the west to the station at Breslau, miles to the east. Berlin, Munich and Vienna were among the silent stations, and the Oslo (Norway) station also went off the air."

It has been the practice to close down broadcasting stations in order that raiding fliers can not use the radio beams as guides to their objectives.

DEMOCRATS IN ARGUMENT ON AID TO ALLIES

Roosevelt's repeated urgings of aid to democracies short of war, insisted that the convention go on record in support of this policy.

Forcing Issue
Leaders of this faction forced the issue despite the fact that non-interventionists gained strong representation on a 17-man sub-committee named by Sen. Robert Wagner, New York, chairman, to draft the platform.

Sen. Prentiss Brown, Michigan, sub-committee member, said: "I believe that sentiment is gaining for a platform plank expressing approval of giving the Allies all the aid possible, within the law. I believe a platform plank expressing this policy would prove popular with the American people."

Brown, however, characterized the sub-committee as predominantly isolationist. It included such strong critics of Roosevelt administration sales of arms to the Allies as Sen. Wheeler, Montana and McCarran, Nevada.

Sen. Wheeler violently objected to proposals for sale of government munitions and ships to aid the Allies. He said:

"I am sympathetic to the Allies, but many do not distinguish between private aid within the law, to which there can be no objection, and aid by the government as a government, which violates international law."

Sen. Pepper Disappointed
Sen. Pepper, Florida, leader in the fight to extend aid to Great Britain was bitterly disappointed at being omitted from the drafting sub-committee and at its isolationist make-up. He threatened a floor fight if a "pussy-footing platform" is recommended. He said:

"I hope we will make a straightforward declaration rededicating the nation to the cause of liberty and freedom, denounce Hitlerism and call for aid to the Allies short of war."

All thought of writing a universal military service or conscription plank in the platform was dropped by sponsors as a canvass showed the resolutions committee heavily committed against it. Administration leaders said that no such plank would be pressed.

The possibility of a fight against a plank endorsing Secretary of State Hull's reciprocal trade policy apparently was averted, despite the fact that western Democrats have vigorously attacked trade treaties.

"We take the position that the issue is unimportant—Hitler repealed the trade treaty policy," said Calvin Rawlings, Salt Lake City, chairman of an 11-state western bloc.

Four Are Indicted In Washington Co.

Three Former County Officials Included In Grand Jury Conspiracy Charges

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Pa., July 16.—As the climax to a lengthy investigation, three former county officials and another man were under indictment today on charges of conspiracy to operate slot machines.

The indictments, returned by a special grand jury which has been in session for the past four weeks, named former District Attorney James C. Bane, former County Detective M. J. Powell and William B. McBride, and Albert Phillips, of Charleroi, as alleged slot machine operators.

Bane, Powell and McBride were named in one conspiracy indictment charging that they "with evil intent corruptly permitted" the operation of slot machines in Washington county. Phillips' name was listed in a second true bill of similar nature.

Phillips also was accused, in 20 separate indictments, of the misdemeanors of "setting up, establishing and maintaining" slot machines in 20 night clubs and taverns in the county. The indictments alleged the gross take amounted to $100,000 to $125,000 annually, and that this was split either "50-50" or "40-60" between Phillips and the taverns.

Special Prosecutor Roy P. Hicks, of Pottsville, said the jury recommended continuation of the special probe, with emphasis on the "numbers racket."

REMOVE 61 BODIES FROM COAL MINE AFTER GAS BLAST

cases the true identities will never be known, and some stricken families may never be certain that they have buried their own.

The bodies, wrapped in the brattice cloth which had not been blown from its proper moorings in the mine entries, might have meant life for the victims, were taken to the Portage fire hall.

Many Suffocated
Many of the victims apparently met their death from suffocation when the standing blast let loose at 10:30 a. m. (EST) yesterday and used up the precious oxygen.

And many came to the surface on the lips of the rescue workers. They told of fathers and sons who had attempted to shield one another from the force of the explosion.

In one section, rescuers reported, they found a group of 34 men, whose last efforts had been the building of a futile barricade to keep the deadly black drap from them. But the gas seeped through the hastily constructed structure.

Although there has been no official statement as to the cause of the explosion, unofficial sources indicated that excess gas in the mine might have been exploded when ignited by an engine spark.

Some of the miners who escaped indicated that there may have been two explosions, the first when the gas let loose, and then another from dust raised by the first and set off by a dangling charged wire.

Eight priests from neighboring towns and mining communities remained on constant watch to give the final rites as the rescue work proceeded. From families and relatives of the dead men, long injured to mine field tragedies, only an occasional heart-rending sob could be heard.

L. C. Campbell, assistant to P. C. Thomas, vice-president of Koppers Coal Company, said that the mine would operate "as usual" after the men had been buried.

Christianity lived in the catacombs and any cause thrives on persecution, and holding down Europe will be no easy job.

DON'T SQUANDER TAX MONEY NOW

THE current world crisis, which has come home with a bang to the United States, should have at least one beneficial effect—and that is to discourage the proponents of certain costly, unnecessary and highly dubious political schemes.

One such scheme is the St. Lawrence river project, whereby the United States government would spend hundreds of millions for hydro-power development which we don't need, and for inland water transport facilities which would simply divert business from existing private carriers.

According to dispassionate surveys, the St. Lawrence project would result in cheaper transportation and cheaper power only if a large part of the cost were charged off to other purposes—only, in other words, if government subsidized the business with the taxpayers' money. If all costs were honestly figured, including the loss in wages and purchasing power that would result from displacement of existing business, the power and the transportation would prove to be excessively expensive.

We need the St. Lawrence project about as much as a cat needs five legs. Private industry in this country is prepared to give us all the transportation and power service we can possibly use. It will give it to us by spending private money, not tax money. It will create new and important sources of taxation, instead of destroying sources of taxation. It will provide real jobs in real productive industry—not political sinecures.

Even in times of world peace and bounding prosperity, it is doubtful if we can afford political projects to destroy private business. Certainly we can't afford them now, when every possible tax nickel must be turned to national defense.

MIGHT BE A CLUE HERE

The 32,373 persons at the All-Star baseball game in St. Louis the other afternoon probably didn't give much time to thinking about the war in Europe or preparedness in the United States. There's something about baseball that takes the fan's mind off all other troubles while he's watching his favorite sport.

Nevertheless, a detached observer inclines to the opinion that one of the things wrong with the Old World has been its inability to lose itself temporarily in a few hours of baseball madness. And possibly one of the things that may be wrong with this country is the individual citizen's reluctance to give to public affairs as much enthusiasm and concentrated attention as he gives to baseball.

ARTIFICIAL PROSPERITY

This is a blessed country, sure enough, compared with any other on earth just now. But for a long time it has suffered from two evils not existing in many countries that on the whole were much worse off. That is, a plague of idle money and a plague of idle men.

Now, under the stress of war preparations, the men are being absorbed by industry, and so is much of the money. This is some consolation for having to plunge again into rearmament against our natural inclinations. But it is a very roundabout and expensive substitute for natural processes of restoring prosperity. Real prosperity pays for itself and leaves a surplus; this artificial prosperity gives temporary relief but leaves us with heavier debts and more interest to pay.

What we need, when the armament job is done, if we are saved from war, is concentration on the job of making our American economy a going concern, paying its way right along and leaving a surplus to reduce the public debt.

PLENTY OF WORK AHEAD FOR CONGRESS

It's to be hoped that when Congress comes back to work, after its second vacation in a few weeks, it will be sufficiently refreshed to stick more closely to the job than during its recent meetings.

Visitors to the Capitol this summer, while Congress was in session, have been surprised to note the small attendance of members. It might be thought that they would seek the artificial coolness of the chambers to avoid the torridity outside.

During a recent five-day period more than 150 Representatives failed to answer roll-calls, while in the Senate the proportion of those absent without leave was at least as large as it is reported by an eastern daily newspaper.

Election year might be the reason, except for the fact that the campaign has not yet got under way.

Defense measures have had right of way lately, but time was found to pass the new Hatch bill. The Walter-Logan bill and Wagner Act revision are items that must not be neglected when the legislators return to Washington.

CLAMPING DOWN ON THE SOVIET WORKER

Soviet Russia, after experimenting with a so-called five-day week that was really longer in effect, recently prescribed a straight six-day week for all, to speed up production, especially of weapons and munitions.

But it seems that even with longer hours Soviet workers are not delivering the goods. So Moscow has issued a new decree providing imprisonment for "poor or incomplete production in industry."

Apparently quality as well as quantity has suffered, since mention is made of watches that also refuse to work, alarm clocks that don't alarm and tractors with cracks and other defects covered by paint.

American engineers returning from Stalinland tell of the difficulties they encountered in keeping the wheels of industry turning, even under the government's policy of forced labor. Talk of Russia as the workingman's paradise makes them laugh.

It will not be surprising if many of the "comrades" prefer jail to jobs—the kind their government provides. But our home-grown Communists will continue to point to the Russian system as far superior to our own. Yet they seem to be in no haste to depart for that modern Utopia. The word means "no land," and certainly Russia doesn't bear the slightest resemblance to the glowing picture the Communists hold up before the American people.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Great men think of opportunity—not time.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

PARENTS AND TEACHERS COMMUNE

"Dear Doctor Myers: As chairman of the grade school P. T. A. I am appealing to you for ideas and suggestions for a constructive program for this school year. Up to this time the Parent Teacher meetings in our school, in fact throughout our entire city, have been largely of the entertaining variety. Our committee feels that the program should be more worthwhile and constructive."

My reply: First, limit the regular program to one hour. Ask a doctor to take one evening telling how to prevent communicable disease, and what to do till the doctor comes. Ask a dentist to talk on how you and your children may have and keep good teeth. Ask a merchant to tell of his problems with children who come to his store, and offer suggestions for solving such. Ask your school superintendent, principal or a teacher to tell what the school expects of the home; and a parent to tell what the home expects of the school.

Strict Time Limit
One speaker a night is enough. He should not speak more than thirty minutes. Hold him strictly to the time limits. Have him answer questions. Limit the music or other entertainment to about eight or ten minutes.

Since you have a large Hungarian group, induce some Hungarian father to tell of some of the customs of his native country. On the same evening you might have some Hungarian children put on a brief folk dance in Hungarian costume. Such would create a fine feeling and make the Hungarian children and parents feel more worthwhile.

Some skillful person might give a review of a good book for parents on child guidance or family relationships. There might, indeed, be two such reviews as an evening program. I shall be glad to suggest books for this purpose.

Then there could be an evening of improvised skits such as:
A. A dinner scene in which there is tension, bedlam, radio on, etc.

B. Followed by another dinner scene that is wholesome.

C. A bad bed time scene, followed by a good bed time scene.

Practically every P. T. A. program should have something to do with improving parenthood, promoting child health, child guidance and protection, or fostering closer home-school cooperation.

Would you like to have each of all the following lists of books: books to read to young children, graded lists for children to read, books for parents? Then write me at 325 East 45th Street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems
Q. Would you punish a child for an accident, like dropping a glass or breaking a vase?
A. No; but if he were playing with such things or dangerously near them, I would command him to quit the play. Then if he continued, he would be punished immediately, whether anything were broken or not.

Q. Would you advise reading from the Bible to children under eight or ten at home?
A. I would do so urgently. No better English to be found anywhere, nor better stories.

In taking a month's cruise tips should be given at intervals of say, two weeks, instead of waiting until the end of the voyage, as is usual on transatlantic voyages. A reasonable standard for such fortnightly tips would be the amount which would be normally given her the same service on a transatlantic voyage.

"I can't understand," said the young swain solicitously. "What do you mean by two marks?"
"Do you mean to say you're not going to kiss me twice," demanded the girl.

Reader's Questions Answered
Question: I have been told that one should say something after "How do you do" immediately after an introduction. How is this done when the persons introduced are strangers?—Reader.

Answer: The hostess who introduces two strangers should strive to supply a conversational opening for them, as Mrs. Smith, this is Mrs. Jones, who gave such an interesting recital at our last club meeting. Mrs. Smith, thereupon, makes some complimentary remark about the recital. If you have no such lead, try to think of something, for instance: "I have heard so much about you from Mrs. Hest that may start a conversational flow."

Question: What type of wedding would be correct for a widower marrying a maiden?—Ina.
Answer: The wedding of a spinster is always the same in detail whether she marries a bachelor or a widower. The widower or divorcee should not give a bachelor dinner. But the bride may have an elaborate wedding wearing the traditional bride attire with a long line of bridesmaids if that is her wish.

Peace Would Bring Crash In Washington
Many New Jobs Created By War Situation
Capital Is Crammed With Others Seeking Jobs

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Peace in Europe would cause one of the worst washes in Washington in the capital's history.

Defense preparation has resulted in the creation of a lot of new government jobs and in the promise of many more. The city simply is crammed with applicants for these berths. Office seekers evidently regard this as the greatest pork-barrel opportunity in a generation. In all time, in fact, it's bad as one of the national conventions. Hotels haven't room for out-of-town visitors, after places on the national payroll, Senators, representatives and executives ante-rooms are jammed with them. And not a few break into inner sanctums, despite all efforts to let them in, if at all, only gradually.

Conscription is any criterion of the public's willingness to serve its country, there won't be much occasion for compulsory methods to fill the roster. However, this is a little different from what the pro-draft advocates are urging. The present contingent want GOOD jobs—white-collar jobs, anyway. Their direct big policy, not to be ordinary doughboys—or mere industrial conscripts, either.

Profiteers?—In Their Own Way
Nor are all these job hunters simply small-caliber folk, who, maybe, ought to have some allowances made for 'em, as not amounting to much, anyway.

A goodly percentage are politicians, or others, of a good bit of standing.

They're not asking for comparatively trifling positions at two or two-and-a-half thousands per annum. Their bids are for ten or fifteen or more thousands apiece annually. There aren't so many of these available yet, but the seekers are hopeful, of more shortly. If the war hangs on more than a few years, that such jobs, once legislated into existence, will last forever, and that the aspirant who lands one now will hold it as long as his life lasts.

There are congressional "isolationists" who argue that these chaps will be, if they can get away with it, more truly "profiteers" than those that they so loudly accuse of profiteering designs—and past practices.

Peace Not So Welcome
To these birds peace suggestions aren't so welcome.

They don't admit the contrary. Nevertheless, they're flustered when they read news dispatches to the effect that Britain may be on the verge of coming to terms with Hitler and Mussolini—muddling into existence, will last forever, and that the aspirant who lands one now will hold it as long as his life lasts.

Peace, indeed, would be all right from the standpoint of our national defensive job-seekers—provided it doesn't crimp our defense program, which they're so anxious to get jobs under.

If it's agreed that Uncle Sam

THAT PHILADELPHIA MIRACLE

I am like millions of citizens of these United States when it comes to Wendell Willkie. I did not know anything about him. I did not even know that he was President of Commonwealth and Southern, the parent organization of the Pennsylvania Power Company, distributors, incidentally, of power and light to New Castle. That is a frank confession. I failed to even notice him to be present at the dedication of the West Pittsburgh Power Plant, as the distinguished President of the parent organization, Wendell Willkie comes, therefore, pretty close to New Castle.

From all that I read during the last two weeks in June, I am certain that before the November election, Wendell Willkie is going to be known to every voter in this land—no matter how remote, if it ever there was a miracle performed, it was performed in Philadelphia the last week in June. It is useless to talk about his candidacy being promoted by Wall Street or by the promoters of Public Service Corporations. The men of Wall Street never could have accomplished it.

Here was a man, virtually unknown until a few weeks ago who, without political organization, funds or seasoned advisers, achieved the nomination almost entirely on the strength of the popular enthusiasm and how did he arouse it? The story in the issue of the Saturday Evening Post on the eve of that Convention described this man, as one not afraid to express his opinions boldly and bluntly. The reproduction of his photograph was enough to win for him a tremendous following. His picture displayed a handsome, clear-eyed, curly-headed man who looks straight at you, with an ingratiating smile, something that no emotional American can ever resist.

The tradition of the two Party system of these United States has come back to life with a vengeance, with his nomination. There is nothing disparaging to the Republican Party that Wendell Willkie was born in the Democratic Party. The votes of the Republicans have elected Franklin Roosevelt twice and now we expect that Democratic Party votes will help elect Wendell Willkie this fall.

No, a man does not have to be born in the Republican Party to constitute him a Republican and this fall there is going to be a battle royal and no voter is going to object to Wendell Willkie because has no personality and because he has no radio voice.

The Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

by The Baltimore Sun (Copyright, 1940)

The Stage All Set

CHICAGO, July 16. AS THE Democrats meet in convention here, it is merely the truth to say that the situation created by Mr. Roosevelt is without parallel in American history. It is, in fact, exactly the sort of situation which the nation's founders considered most dangerous to our form of government and which the early Presidents, by their example and by their utterances, sought to make it impossible.

NEVER before has a President, after eight years in office, attempted to hold on to his power on the ground that he is the Indispensable Man; or in the country capable of directing national affairs; that unless he is kept in the White House calamity will ensue. Nor has there been a party which, against both its instinct and its intelligence, allowed itself to be coerced and persuaded into the acceptance of such a doctrine. Upon the part of the President it seems a piece of conceit so colossal that, despite overwhelming evidence, there still lurks in the minds of a few the thought that it will not be carried through. Upon the part of the President it seems a piece of conceit so colossal that, despite overwhelming evidence, there still lurks in the minds of a few the thought that it will not be carried through. Upon the part of the party it involves a degree of subservience not easy to exaggerate.

UNLESS Mr. Roosevelt has been playing a joke on everybody in the United States, on Thursday the convention will "draft" him for a third term of great enthusiasm, and the first real attempt to smash an American tradition cherished for 150 years will have been launched. The enthusiasm will be synthetic, whipped up by machine politicians and Administration strategists who have been planning and working for this—with full Presidential knowledge—for more than a year. As the "draft" it is so obviously phony that it seems an insult to any adult intelligence to call it a draft.

THE conceded facts prove its complete phonyness. Had he not wanted to encourage it Mr. Roosevelt could have stopped the movement to keep him in the White House at any time in the last year because it was conceived, nourished and managed by his most intimate friends, of whose activities he was completely aware. At any time in the last two weeks he could have stopped it. And, despite shrill cries that he has gone too far to pull back, he could stop it now. Instead, the course he has followed—and still follows—is the course best calculated to promote the third-term movement; to crush out opposition within the party; to knock down every other available aspirant; to prevent the building of any other candidate; to bring about just the situation which exists today—to wit, a convention wholly controlled by his friends, which is all set to nominate him with a whoop, calling upon him to put aside his personal wish and "make the sacrifice" for the country's sake.

ALL of which is bosh. No sacrifice is required of him. There is no "call from the country," and every clear-headed person here knows it. The whole business has been managed, manipulated, worked up. If he permits himself to be "drafted" it is because he has conceived it. It is because he has conceived it, from the start, and no eloquent pretense that he is doing it for the sake of the country alters the fact. The truth is that, whatever dramatic gesture he makes before he yields, his reluctance is feigned. The truth is that the last justification for a third-term attempt vanished with the nomination of Mr. Willkie, whose views on national defense and international affairs parallel Mr. Roosevelt's own—or, at least, what were his own.

THE assumption that no one else in his own party measures up to the Presidency is an impudent assumption, unjustified either by the public or private record of the man. Use of the tragic war developments in Europe by members of Mr. Roosevelt's Cabinet and other job-holding strategists here on the scene to scare or persuade certain key men into abandoning their convictions in order that Mr. Roosevelt's chances for election may be enhanced is despicable. It is true the President is popular in the country, but he has lost the popular vote in the last two years. He has expended the Federal bureaucracy until there are nearly a million men and women on the public pay rolls intensely interested in staying there. He distributes largest out of the public funds to millions of farmers. Millions more are apparently permanently on the WPA rolls. Vast sums have been poured out on public works and in many other directions, not at all allied with national defense.

ONE way or another practically one-fifth of the total population is receiving, directly or indirectly, money from the Federal Treasury. It is an undreamed-of state of affairs, but one which endears him to the politicians, through whose hands out a lot of what the mayor was saying. Senator Scott Lucas doubled Mayor Kelley in spades, with his welcoming address and about 1:15 the session recessed until Monday night at 9 o'clock when Chairman Farley made his official address and temporary Chairman Bankhead delivered his keynote speech.

Garner Appears Forgotten Man At Convention

Session Short

The Monday night session was a short one also, recessing fairly early to permit the newspaper men to attend Mayor Kelley's buffet supper in the Drake Hotel which is for the press.

When this convention is over the mayor of Chicago will need plenty of bicarbonate of soda. He is setting a new high for lunches and dinners to celebrities and every day sees at least two which he has to attend. He has said that he wants the visitors to go away believing that Chicago is a hospitable city and my guess is that they will.

The probabilities are that the convention will be a matter of formality until Thursday when the nominating speeches are to be made. There has been a lot of talk about nominating President Roosevelt for a third term by acclamation but Jim Farley has been spiking this as have the friends of Senator Burton K. Wheeler and Vice President John N. Garner.

There is always a "forgotten man" at every political convention and in this one Vice President Garner seems to have drawn the brass ring. With a long career of service in Congress behind him, with eight years as vice president behind him, and with the memory that it was here in Chicago in 1932 that he and his backers were responsible for Franklin D. Roosevelt being nominated for president, Mr. Garner has been relegated to the position of a Throtheadbottom.

Garner To Be Forgotten

He will probably be placed in nomination for the presidency, but it will be a gesture. Ironically enough one of his delegates who is pledged to him is Elliott Roosevelt, son of the president.

After the complimentary vote, Mr. Garner will be relegated to the limbo of forgotten vice presidents. No one suggests that his eight years of service call for another nomination. "He is too old," they say, and in the next breath followers of the president urge Cordell Hull as the nominee, and Hull is about the same age as Garner.

Damon Runyan says history is being made in this convention. So far as politics are concerned it is. The third term tradition is being given a going over, the man who made Roosevelt, Jim Farley, seems about ready to step out of the picture and if the present plan succeeds, the "Palace Guard" of the White House, Hopkins, Ickes, Wallace, et al., are going to run things as they want to. The only "Palace Guard" who seems to be temporarily in eclipse is Tommy Corcoran.

Convention Highlights

Some day some city will build an auditorium large enough to accommodate all those folks who want tickets to a political convention. That stadium will be about the size of a farm in Slippery Rock township.

There is a lot of weeping on shoulders over the lack of tickets here. Somebody seems to have done Pennsylvania wrong. Monday morning there were only 200 tickets in the possession of Pennsylvania leaders. Texas had wangled 600, and the commissioner of parks in Chicago had 3,000.

Mell George, delegate from Lawrence County, is one of the few delegates who is getting a little peace. This far few Lawrence County people have shown up for tickets and Mell has an extra book.

"One Eyed Connelly," king of the gate crashers got into the first session of the convention. One Eye brought a screw driver along with him and took off an outside door which he said had to be taken into the convention. An obliging porter helped him carry it in.

Democratic leaders here are scared to death of a "We Want Willie" demonstration in the gallery. Guy Warren, an oil man from Texas and a Democrat, is here for the purpose of insisting that Willie be the nominee. He won't get far but there's a slight case of jitters developing over what might happen in the gallery.

One of the Pennsylvania Democratic leaders showed me a telegram from "back home" Monday morning. The telegram merely said "we want a man of peace, Wheeler is the man." But the Keystone leader looked back of the telegram and with a wry smile said "that's Willie propaganda."

Jimmy O'Toole of Pittsburgh, president of the Pittsburgh city council, and a former practicing attorney in New Castle is prominent at this convention, at least in the Pennsylvania delegation. At the caucus Monday morning he spoke sharply of the lack of tickets for Pennsylvanians and asked if something couldn't be done to get some Pittsburghers into the convention.

The Pennsylvania caucus in the Gold Room of the Congress hotel on Monday morning was a gathering of the Democratic big shots of the state. Senator Guffey, his sister, Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller of Slippery Rock, John Kane, Jimmy O'Toole, Pat Fagan and David Lawrence of Pittsburgh, Auditor-General Warren R. Roberts, State Treasurer F. Clair Ross of Butler, Jack Kelly and Matt McCloskey of Philadelphia and a host of minor greats.

This paragraph is a commercial plug. Sitting at the speakers' table in the Pennsylvania caucus Monday morning State Treasurer Ross leaned over and whispered, sotto voce, "don't forget to tell my Lawrence County friends I'm here." So now you're told.

Ely Culbertson, the chap who kept your wife up nights studying his rules on contract bridge is here as an alternate delegate from Connecticut. Culbertson predicts the convention will be a lay down for Roosevelt and that other aspirants are over bidding. He is bidding for the Democratic nomination at-large to Congress from Connecticut.

Another well known gentleman here is James H. R. Cromwell, husband of Doris Duke, the wealthiest girl in the world. Cromwell is the former ambassador to Canada and is a candidate for the United States Senate from New Jersey.

Even the stage and screen is represented. Helen Gahagan, the actress, and wife of Melvyn Douglas, is a delegate from California and has been named national committee woman from that state.

In the meantime the delegates, alternates, visitors and political hangers on are enjoying Chicago. The Windy City is proving a good host.

There are a lot of former New Castle folks who live in the Chicago district and gradually we are meeting up with them. Mr. and Mrs. George L. Fogle live in Winnetka, a suburb of Chicago. Mrs. Fogle is the former Wilhelmina Northdurft, daughter of the late John Northdurft, of New Castle. Mrs. Northdurft makes her home with her daughter and son-in-law.

Mr. Fogle is a former actor and stage manager. Some years ago he managed the Smith-Robson players in the Capitol Theater. He was with the Theater Guild in New York and was stage manager for Leslie Howard, Jane Cowl, John Halliday and other stars. Later he went into radio and is in that work in Chicago.

One veteran political reporter is missing at this convention, John B. Shaw of Pittsburgh. Starting in 1906 John has attended every major political convention but his doctor put thumbs down on this one.

Lawrence County is represented by a delegate who seems to know his way around Chicago, Mell George of Enon Valley. Mell was in the law and the mid-west for many years and Chicago is familiar ground to him. Strolling down Monroe street Sunday night he remarked "this town isn't any livelier on Sunday night than Enon Valley." I wouldn't know, I never was in Enon Valley on Sunday night.

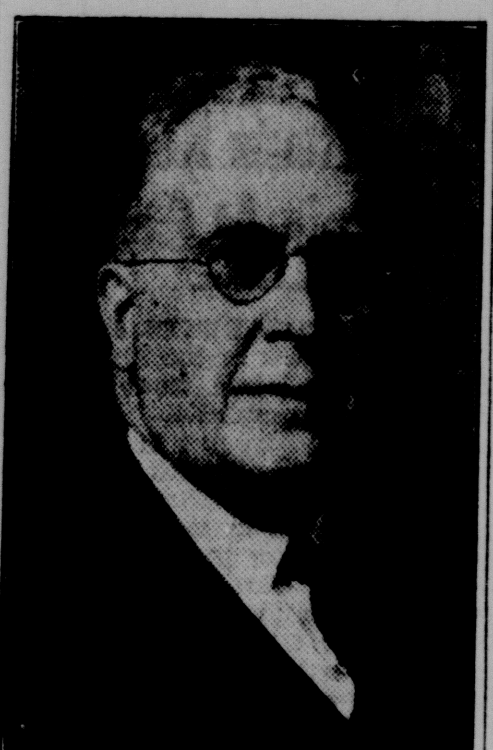

John B. Shaw, county chairman of the Democratic Party in Lawrence County was expected to arrive in Chicago on Monday night. Several friends of County Commissioner Joseph F. Travers insisted that he would be here before the convention closed.

The mystery has been revealed. The identity of the alternate delegates from the 26th district have been revealed. They are Judge Henry Wilson of Beaver County and Judge John Wilson of Butler County.

Captain Roger W. Rowland, Republican county chairman for Lawrence County, will be here later in the week, but not for the convention. Cap has an annual custom of entertaining some of his customers at Arlington track every year and the date is Thursday of this week.

Civilization can't improve much till man gets over the idea that some ideal system can make life good without good people.

much of the money flows, as well as to the recipients who are encouraged by the politicians to react as though this was Mr. Roosevelt's own money which he hands out of his own pocket. All politicians love a spender. He is the greatest spender ever heard of, and the futility of opposing him in this convention was early apparent.

HOWEVER, make no mistake about this convention. All opposition has been smothered under the Administration weight and the cleverness of Mr. Roosevelt in playing the game with his managers while seeming to remain aloof, engrossed with the great problems of the Presidency. The nomination—unless he stops it—likely will be by acclamation. The galleries, filled with Mayor Kelly's loyal cohorts, will cheer, the bands will play and the delegates march. But in the convention and in the party and in the country there is deep-seated resentment at what is being done. There is a smell of humbuggery in the air. Many of the men here who are fully prepared to acquiesce on the surface are bitter in their hearts. They have supported Mr. Roosevelt twice, but are convinced a great blunder is about to be made in nominating him again. They look forward to the campaign with distaste and to its result with discouragement.

Exchange Group Hears Dr. Bennett

Dr. G. S. Bennett, pastor of the First Christian church, delivered a most interesting and timely address before members of the New Castle Exchange club at The Castleton on Monday evening.

Dr. Bennett chose as his subject, "The Patriotism of Peace," and emphasized that we owe something to our government. There are people, he stated, who feel that the government owes them something and that they should get all they possibly can.

"Patriotism," he said, "is not simply displaying the flag or singing the National Anthem, but can be expressed first by obedience to the laws of the land and secondly by seeking to uphold the ideals of the nation. It is not the size of a country, or largest population or even military achievements that makes a nation great. In my opinion, what makes a country great is its ideals. Here in our own country they are the ideals expressed in our constitution."

One of these ideals is national peace and we can uphold the ideal of peace without being a pacifist. Another is service to our fellowmen and to our country. This nation presents unlimited opportunities for service. No man can call himself a real American until he has done or will do something for America."

Before introducing the speaker, President L. J. Lewis reviewed the state convention recently held at Reading, Pa.

The Exchange club meets again next Monday, July 22, in the Castleton at 5:46 p. m.

must go on defending himself with plenty of jobs for themselves, regardless of the rest of the world, it's o. k. with the defensive. Not otherwise.

A Patched-Up Peace
I don't say that a patched-up peace now mightn't leave it as necessary as ever for the United States to proceed with its big defense schedule—plus jobs a-plenty for politicians.

Such an idea gives 'em the jitters. The issue may have a deal to do with the November election.

Maybe there won't be any patched-up peace. Maybe there will be. There's talk of it. If there is or there isn't (supposing one or the other happens between now and November), there's no knowing how the parties will straddle on it, one way or the other.

But I do foresee that it's liable to develop damned controversially (and unpredictably) next autumn.

Camp Rentz Roster Again At Capacity

Superintendent C. C. Coulthard announces that Monday was the biggest day thus far, with the kiddies at Cascade Park.

From 12:30 to 6:00 p. m. every Monday, the Park Commission has made a special rate of three cents for those under the age of fourteen, to swim in the pool, or ride on the dodge'em or merry-go-round.

Mr. Coulthard says that 950 kiddies availed themselves of a hilarious time Monday afternoon, swimming in the splendid pool, with life savers at hand to supervise their play, and look out for their safety. Fully a thousand of them rode the "merry-go-round," and the "dodge'em," the kiddies getting a big "kick" in demonstrating their skill in maneuvering the small electric cars within the enclosure.

Teachers and parents who brought their pupils and children out yesterday to share in the jolly time, are quite enthusiastic in the arrangement made for the kiddies by the Park Commission.

From 12:30 to 6:00 p. m. every Monday, the Park Commission has made a special rate of three cents for those under the age of fourteen, to swim in the pool, or ride on the dodge'em or merry-go-round.

Mr. Coulthard says that 950 kiddies availed themselves of a hilarious time Monday afternoon, swimming in the splendid pool, with life savers at hand to supervise their play, and look out for their safety. Fully a thousand of them rode the "merry-go-round," and the "dodge'em," the kiddies getting a big "kick" in demonstrating their skill in maneuvering the small electric cars within the enclosure.

Teachers and parents who brought their pupils and children out yesterday to share in the jolly time, are quite enthusiastic in the arrangement made for the kiddies by the Park Commission.

Dr. Daffoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

ACNE

Acne seems to be an affliction of adolescence, although it sometimes does make an appearance before that time. The great majority of sufferers are at the age of puberty when they break out in the eruption of pus-producing pimples on the face and neck that we know as acne.

The disease attacks both healthy and frail children, boys and girls alike. At times it seems to have a preference for the more athletic types. The disease is definitely connected with the development of sex, because older people do not have it, nor do undersexed individuals.

We think that heredity plays a part in acne, for some families number amongst their characteristics an oily skin and these are the ones most often attacked by acne. I myself have treated girls or boys for the trouble and then, years later, I've treated their children for the same thing.

The actual cause of acne is obscure, as I have said here before. Some researchers believe it is due to an upsetting of the glandular system, others think bacteria are responsible, and still others blame it on some food to which the victim is allergic.

Treating acne is an experimental business. What will clear up the complaint in one person won't budger another. No one treatment will clear up every case. Glandular substances have been used extensively and show limited success. They seem, for instance, to alleviate the disfigurement of the face, but don't appear to remove the underlying cause. When treatment is discontinued they break out again. These glandular treatments must be carried out with great care lest they create an abnormality in some other part of the system.

X-rays appear to have the same effect on acne as do the glandular treatments. By that, I mean that with either X-rays or gland preparations, there is a limited improvement in the boy or girl. But treatment by both X-rays and glandular preparations give no better result than when only one is tried. They simply duplicate each other's work.

Diet adjustments may bring improvement, but this is a treatment that must be studied carefully by your doctor. If the patient is strong and robust, it is often well to cut down on the use of dairy products, chocolate, fried foods, nuts, duck and goose. These products contain a fat radicle definitely connected with outbreaks of acne. However, the removal of these foods from the diet of a frail, or undernourished person may be dangerous. Hence the need for having the doctor's supervision in such treatment. Condiments and spices of all kinds should be discontinued by anyone suffering from acne.

It is this fact that food seems to have something to do with acne that has led some doctors to think that it is a form of food allergy. Pimple pills are still being sold as cures for acne. Most of these are actually harmful and should be avoided.

In almost all cases they contain iodine, and that is one substance the acne patient is particularly advised to avoid. Even minute quantities in iodized table salt may be harmful.

Bowels should be kept open by diet, not harmful laxatives. Vitamin B, which can be obtained in tablet form, is helpful. So is vitamin D, from sunshine or cod liver oil. Cleansing creams with an oil or fatty base shouldn't be used. Common sulphur soap or a mild mercurial soap is advisable when washing.

Remember, if your doctor doesn't cure you with the first try, don't get discouraged. Don't lose faith in him for no treatment is effective in every case of acne. The most general beneficial treatment is X-rays, but whatever your doctor tries, stay with him. It won't take him very long to hit on the treatment that will relieve your acne.

More Airports For Pennsylvania Urged

Would Build 40 More Airports As Part Of National Defense Program

(International News Service) HARRISBURG, July 16.—Construction of 40 additional airports in Pennsylvania at an estimated cost of $15,000,000 to bolster the nation's defense Monday was urged by the state's air defense committee in a report to be studied by Gov. Arthur H. James.

Rep. E. Kent Kane, chairman, declared an investigation revealed the state—a "No. 1 Military Target"—was "woefully unprepared to defend itself against possible air invasion."

He added that the committee report specified locations of proposed airfields and suggested a plan to finance the airport expansion.

Kane, a "lame duck" house member, said the report recommended that the "state highways department step in now and complete landing fields already started, without federal aid, using state motor funds."

Farm Population Nears New Record
WASHINGTON, July 16.—The American farm population on Jan. 1 was estimated by the Agriculture Department today at 32,245,000, the largest in 24 years.

The estimate was 186,000 more than a year ago and represented an increase of 2,076,000 for the decade 1930-39. The highest farm population figure ever reported was 32,530,000 in 1916.

The increase during the 1930's followed a decrease of 1,445,000 during the 1920's and a net loss of 436,000 between 1910 and 1920.

The department said farms lost 2,179,000 persons through migration during the 1930's, but that an excess of rural births over deaths more than offset losses through movement to urban areas. Births were reported at 7,361,000 and deaths at 3,313,000 during the past decade.

A lack of opportunity in cities may add 2,000,000 more persons to the rural population by 1950, the department said.

Largest increases in farm population during the last 10 years were in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi. The south Atlantic states, from Maryland and Delaware to Florida, showed the next largest gain.

Silence Of President Brings Resentment By Delegates

Open Revolts May Develop

Many Booms Are Developing For Nomination To Second Place On Ticket

INTRAPARTY WAR MAY BE OUTCOME

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHISON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, July 16—Marked resentment over President Roosevelt's continued silence on the third term issue today threatened to provoke open revolts at the Democratic National Convention before it can get around to handing him a re-nomination.

The president's silence also resulted in a dozen vice presidential booms. New Dealers lauded this development as an exhibition of Democratic processes but regular Democrats warned that the apparent free-for-all race for second place may end in violent disappointments and intra party warfare.

Move To Place
The "inner circle" strategists, who are handling the president's re-nomination, made one move to placate the convention. It was the announcement that Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, would retire from the vice presidential race and serve as floor manager for the third term nomination. In some quarters, this was taken to indicate the president was coming out of his political shell and signaling the "green sign" for his re-nomination.

But the new deal managers privately denied this. On the contrary, they asserted again and again to intimates that they are uncertain whether the president will accept the renomination. They expressed new hope that there will be "no opposition" to the president's renomination so it will be the easier to convince him that he must run again for the good of the party and the country.

N. Y. A. Aid Given 38,000 In State

High School And College Students Given Help By Youth Administration

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, July 16—Approximately 38,000 students in Pennsylvania's high schools and colleges were aided by the National Youth Administration during the 1939-40 school year.

In helping the young people continue with their educational careers, a total of nearly two million dollars was paid to 38,000 high school and 8,000 college and graduate students, according to figures revealed by Walter S. Cowing, state N.Y.A. administrator.

According to Cowing the average earnings for high school youth was $4.12 a month, for college youth $12.93 a month, and graduate students $21.31 per month for doing work in and about their institutions. "It is interesting to note," he said, "that the majority of students did not ask for N.Y.A. aid unless they actually needed the money." He added that nearly twice as many students applied for N.Y.A. assistance than could be helped.

During the past school year the all-state average family income of N.Y.A. aided college students was $1195.00 and for high school students $651.50. Although the amount paid to students were small, in many cases they meant the difference between a student continuing his classes or dropping out of school entirely. The N.Y.A. earnings served to pay transportation, lunches, school supplies, part of the tuition and other similar items.

In high schools the project work was concerned with repair of school furniture and equipment, care and upkeep of grounds and athletic fields, and in clerical service. The work in colleges in most instances was devoted to research and laboratory work of considerable value to the youth and community.

Applicants for N.Y.A. aid are selected by school authorities upon the basis of need and ability.

When you see a red-faced man making wrathful gestures, he is saying: "Why in thunder don't those fellows in Washington—"

Detroit Tigers Take Loop Lead

Defeat Macks 9 To 8 As Indians Fold Up To Washington Senators

By PAT ROBINSON
(International News Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, July 16.—When Manager Del Baker of the Detroit Tigers decided to break Hank Greenberg in as an outfielder this season and send lumbering Rudy York to Hank's old spot at first base, there was much head-shaking among the experts who were sure the experiment wouldn't take.

But Baker must be smiling with satisfaction today after the way Hank and Rudy acted yesterday as the Tigers nipped the Philadelphia Athletics, 9 to 8, to take the American League lead from Cleveland by two percentage points.

Greenberg, playing left field, walked a three-run homer in Detroit's eighth-inning fourth and York, still at first base, clouted a homer for the decisive run in the sixth. Rookie Harold Newhouser was the winner.

Indians Defeated
Sid Hudson, Washington rookie, limited the Indians to seven blows and the Senators scored an 8 to 6 success, dropping the Tribe into second place. Southpaw Edgar Smith curbed the Yankees, 3 to 2, for Chicago to snap a New York winning streak at four games. The Boston Red Sox set back the St. Louis Browns, 10 to 6, with Manager Joe Cronin contributing a home run.

Bucky Walters' five-hit, 3 to 2, victory—his 13th of the year—boosted Cincinnati's National League lead to three games over Brooklyn's Dodgers who walked 17 hits and whipped Pittsburgh, 10 to 1, in the opener of a twin bill, but were baffled by Bob Klinger, 4 to 3, in the nightcap.

SPIEGAL TO DRAW
Tommy Spigal, Uniontown, Pennsylvania, lightweight champion, drew in 10 rounds with Irvin Eldridge of New York in New York City last night.

William Hurley, trainer of Bimelech, trained Bad News, the first horse owned by Col. E. R. Bradley, in 1903.

ZIVIC VS ARMSTRONG

Promoters Rooney and McGinley hope to match Fritz Zivic and Henry Armstrong for a bout in Pittsburgh this summer. The promoters are in New York discussing the proposed bout with Eddie Mead, manager of Armstrong.

MANAGERS TO MEET

There will be a meeting of the Class C managers softball teams at the "Y" Wednesday night at 8 o'clock, it was announced by Ray Wallace today. All managers should make it a point to be present.

Marty O'Toole, St. Paul pitcher sold to Pittsburgh for $22,500 in 1911, recently wrote to President William Bannan, of the Pirates, for a sweater coat bearing the club's insignia. The request was granted.

John Dean Ices Morgan In Fifth

Straight Right To Chin Ends Bout; Trammell And Wardlow Are Winners

Sending out a straight right wallop to the chin, Johnny Dean, 165, New Castle's singing marine, scored a fifth round kayo over Steve Morgan, rugged Youngstown 162 pounder, Monday night in Youngstown.

Dean had a slight edge until the end of the fifth. Dean commenced to solve Morgan's attack. After shooting a left to the mid-section, Dean uncorked a long right which traveled straight as a whistle. The blow caught Morgan on the point of the chin. That was all for Morgan.

In the feature go, Jack Trammell, long Youngstown, left handed over Eddie Blunt, New York, in a dull scrap. Joe Lous, heavyweight champ, served as third man.

Al Wardlow, Youngstown, kayoed Billy Hood, Orlando, Florida, in the first chucker.

Geo. Vickers, Sidney, Ohio, iced Irish Charley Burns, Johnston, and the show was a slugging bee. The bout was called a draw.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Fishing in the vicinity of Beverly and Wolf lakes in Canada was not so hot until a week ago yesterday because of rains which raised the water in the lakes providing members of the piscatorial family with plenty of food. However, beginning one week ago Monday, rain came more three times and fish were in a more receptive mood. Cottages could be obtained from $10 upward, a week a boat went with the cottage. Minnows could be obtained for two cents each. The smaller minnows, for pickerel and perch, could be secured for a cent each. Creek minnows were better than the lake minnows. Frogs could be purchased for two cents, one cent for the catching and one cent for the sale. They proved very good bait for the fly rods before the week was over. Dew worms were for pickerel and perch cost one cent each. Should one desire an extra boat it could be secured for 50 cents in some sections and $1.00 in another. However, the 50 cents per board motor in some sections could be rented for $1.00 per day.

And how does the man in the street feel about war? We discussed the war with half a dozen, including businessmen. They are in a determined mood and believe Hitlerism must be stamped out. They believe that, while the war may be long, Great Britain is sure to win. They have unabashed faith in the RAF. They also claim that the British force is now centered at home. They believe that supplies from the United States will play a big part in aiding Britain. They also appreciate the assertion that the U. S. will aid Canada if attacked. In many places we could see recruiting under way and in one town heard a speaker using an amplifying set, urging men to join and "Stamp out Hitlerism!" We met one man who was not strong for fighting for England, (although he intends to enlist), and another who remarked the day may come when Canada and the U. S. will be one nation.

Police attired immaculately in Toronto wore helmets and blue uniforms. Their trousers have red stripes. They present a striking appearance and being very courteous, do justice to Toronto. Sunnyside beach was thronged. Hamilton was apparently a rush of business from beginning to end. Belleville was a busy spot with traffic somewhat congested like in busy Hamilton. Yep, the double parking question bothered them there, too. Kingston also had a big field day. Canadian motorists dim lights or signal with their hands. There is a huge sign in one town claiming it is the birthplace of the late Marie Dressler. At Oshawa a big field day was being held Saturday. In Toronto baseball games are the rage. We didn't have time to take 'em in.

And how does the man in the street feel about war? We discussed the war with half a dozen, including businessmen. They are in a determined mood and believe Hitlerism must be stamped out. They believe that, while the war may be long, Great Britain is sure to win. They have unabashed faith in the RAF. They also claim that the British force is now centered at home. We met one man who was not strong for fighting for England, (although he intends to enlist), and another who remarked the day may come when Canada and the U. S. will be one nation.

Soldiers guard important bridges and essential buildings. One could see them as they motored by. There were sailors at some buildings, soldiers at others. In one city we could see newly arrived recruits drilling. At another place there were many planes for future R.A.F. flyers. They were protected from anyone bent on mischief by machine gunners. A "no stopping" rule was in effect along the highway. Most of the R.A.F. futures and soldiers were young. Some wore Princess Pat hats, and others wore the Highlander Kilts. Many of them could be seen hitch-hiking. A great number of them strolled the streets of Kingston. All apparently were in a jovial mood. The Canadian government was learned on Saturday, made arrangements with Commercial travelers to carry soldiers to and from points of destination. Some Germans who had been captured were said to be interned at Kingston. However, we saw none of them. Many lake boats were docked at the grain elevators in Kingston. Apparently most everybody rides a bicycle in Canada. In fact, one of the chief occupations in Canada were cycling, hitch-hiking (many girls also could be seen thumbing rides) and selling minnows.

Stopping at a place near Oshawa we asked a gasoline station attendant if he knew where one could obtain dry ice. The attendant looked at the writer then turned to another attendant and gave a guffaw, exclaiming: "This fellow wants dry ice!" Believing we were kidding, he directed us to an ice house. Previous to reaching that point we talked to J. T. Bothwell who operates a Canadian restaurant at 245 Front street, Belleville, Ont. He said that if any New Castle fishermen want to go up that way and wanted dry ice he would make arrangements to get it from Montreal.

A Canadian daren't row a boat for a fisherman, free from what we learned. Guides cost $5.00, a day or $25.00 a half day. A half day usually begins at 4 a. m. and ends at 7 p. m. Another half day begins when the sun starts to set and fishing is usually indulged in until seven or eight p. m. unless one wants to plug at night. (We did and lost a good pole and reel when we grabbed an oar in a hurry when swept by some rough waves around a point.)

Among the guides we met at Delta were the Casays, Manford and Kenzel. The latter was all shot up in the last World war; Cecil Holiday, also an ex-service man. One of the younger guides is Rupert Holiday. Then there is Frank Chisholm. In fact, there are many of them available if one wants a guide. George Snider, also known to many New Castle people, is no longer guiding. He is working in a locomotive shop at Kingston. Morris Snider, about 18, is the boy who does chores for campers and Frank Kurst, about 65, one of Delta's best known officials, may be termed the town's official greeter. He'll furnish or find a cottage at any price, one wants to pay. He's a chap filled with information essential to a visitor.

And now about the fish? They started to bite a week ago Sunday. The bass apparently were bigger this year. Ed. Fritz, Jr., caught 'em around six pounds as did Mrs. Norman Holzhauser of Niagara Falls. Ont. Two of the best pike we saw pulled out were ensnared by Twila Kiefer and Jack Fritz. Art Kiefer, his son John, Jack Fritz and the writer also got nice sized bass, pike and pickerel. Mrs. Arthur Kiefer got pike and bass while O. Better Half caught a 3 1/2 pound small mouth black bass, pike and perch. Smallmouth black are scarce in Beverly. Frank Kurst remarked. For rating, Arthur said "I'll pass. On the bass but hand me the pick-erel."

Goosebone Weather Prophet Observes Golden Wedding

(International News Service)

BETHLEHEM, July 16.—William Troxell, Bethlehem's famed goosebone weather prophet, is celebrating his 50th wedding anniversary this year.

Troxell does his prognosticating each year by varying tenderness, color, etc., of bones of geese which he raises himself. Only one year has his prediction gone askew, he says, that was because some one stole—and presumably—his favorite goose.

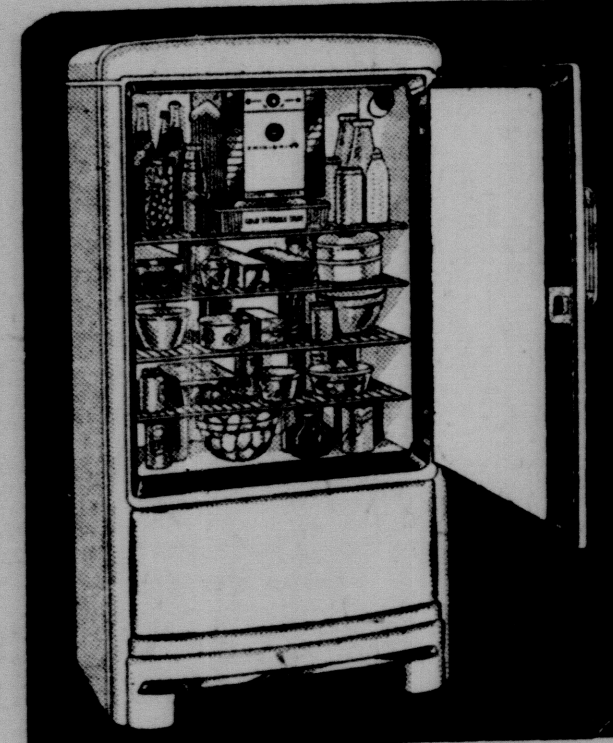

The weather observer's first job was tying cement bags at nearby Egypt for 40 cents an hour. Later he became a cooper and a milk dealer, but recently he has been in the restaurant business.

Big Tank Order

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 16.—A $11,500,000 contract for manufacture of 627 light army tanks—the largest peace time order for tanks in history—was awarded Monday by the War Department.

The tanks will be manufactured by the American Car and Foundry Co., Berwick, Pa.

Additional tanks will be bought as rapidly as negotiations can be carried out with manufacturers since one of the army's largest weaknesses is in modern combat vehicles of this type, according to the army.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEKALL

The whole United States and we suppose Europe await the outcome of the Democratic Convention being held in Chicago this week. Just what will happen... some venture to say, while others sit tight and probably do a lot of thinking. Our own correspondent is on the playing field and should be able to get the play as they are called... so watch this newspaper for play by play comment.

It would be a wonderful thing if all government pushed projects... such as road construction and bridge work could be so arranged that one job be finished before it was left to start another job... to our way of thinking it is rather foolish to take so long to do a road, sewer or bridge job... if private business would do that... where would the business be in a year... it's something to think about.

This is not advertising for any particular firm or industry but merely a fact that too many of us overlook... When you go on your week-end trips or annual vacation be sure to take along a camera. The pictures taken in moments of happiness are priceless... you can look back over the years and see the friends that may have moved away... or the places you visited in easy life... and pictures of children are especially important... you think you will never forget how they looked when young... memory plays funny tricks... but a picture is always there to make thoughts clear.

An unusual incident happened one day last week. A door bell rang and when it was answered a man said... here is a garment that I was supposed to return. The garment was taken by the man who answered the door... (this wife was away) but when she returned and examined the garment she discovered it didn't belong to her... and upon investigating around the neighborhood found no one to claim it. So ladies... if your husband delivered a tatters garment be sure to ask him where he took it... it is... call in person to this desk.

Romance is in the air... many a young lady or man will meet his mate during this month. Some will travel to the seashore, others inland all in search of rest. While on these travels a goodly number will meet someone new and in due time they will say "I Do". It's great to live in a country where one can travel at will and not fear death from bombs.

Injured Aviator Awaits Rescue In Montana Mountain

Pilot Of Provisions Plane
Killed In Forced Landing,
Companion Injured

(International News Service)
MISSOULA, Mont., July 16.—A rescue party with pack mules pushed into the difficult Brushy Fork wilderness today to pick up an aviator who was injured severely when the pilot of a plane in which they were carrying supplies to be dropped to forest fire fighters was killed in a forced landing along the Idaho-Montana boundary.

Two parachutists who were dropped along Brushy Fork Creek, 40 miles southeast of Hamilton, Mont., in search of the plane, messaged by portable radio late yesterday that they had found Pilot Robert Marich of Missoula, dead, and Del Clabough, also of Missoula, the copilot, seriously hurt.

Marich and Clabough had been dropping provisions by parachute to scattered forces of between 8,000 and 10,000 men along the far-flung 200-mile forest fire front in Montana and Idaho, where upward of 700 separate blazes were reported at the peak of the outbreaks following dry lightning storms over the tinder-dry timber stands Friday night and Saturday.

LOW COST DATES

(International News Service)
LUBBOCK, Tex.—Another reason why Pape finds it so hard to keep that bank balance while daughter is in college was revealed today by a survey conducted by V. H. Britton who found that the average co-ed may spend more dressing for a date than the man spends taking her out. However, that wouldn't cause many wrinkles if she's a student at Texas Tech—because the average young man spends only 80 cents on a date there; ten cents for bus tickets, 20 to 40 cents for show tickets, and 30 cents for refreshments.

Historical note: The invaders had complete control within a week after landing, for America had foolishly built all airplane, gun and ammunition factories close to the coast.
